DANNY LYONS MUST HANG.

HIS LAST HOPE FOR LIFE SWEPT AWAY THIS MORNING.

Justice Patterson Decides Adversely on His Appeal, and He Will Meet His Doom Next Tuesday-The Sad News Carried to Lyons by His Lawyer and an "Evening World" Reporter-Lyons Tries Hard to Bear Up and Is Resigned.

The last ray of hope for Danny Lyons has faded away, and if he lives until next Tuesday he will suffer the penalty fixed by law for the killing of Athlete Joseph Quinn. Judge Patterson, in the Supreme Court Chambers this morning, handed down a decision denying the application for a stay of execution pending an appeal to the General

In his decision the Judge reviews the case from the trial in the General Sessions. Continuing, His Honor says:

tinuing, His Honor says:

After the warrant for the execution was given to the Sheriff the prisoner filed a notice of appeal from the original conviction and judgment to the General Term of this Court, and now applies to this Court upon a writ of habeas corpus claiming that the fixing of the date of execution by the Recorder was without authority of isw, and that the Court of General Sessions had no jurisdiction to name the day for the indiction of the death penalty, and asked the interposition of the Court to stay his execution upon the ground stated. ground stated.

The contention of the prisoner is based upon certain sections of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and it is claimed that those sections operate to vest an exclusive authority in certain courts named therein to fix a day for the carrying out of a sentence in a capital case under the circumstances mentioned, and that the Coart of General Sessions had no jurisdiction whatever.

Judge Patterson then refers to the sections in question, and in conclusion says :

in question, and in conclusion says:

it seems to me from a general consideration of the whole case that the existing jurisdiction of the supreme Court to sit in review or appeal in a criminal case is attogether statutory and not a part of the inherent general jurisdiction offshe Supreme Court, and thatif was entirely competent for the Legislature to take a way the jurisdiction which it had conferred upon the Supreme Court, and I inerefore must decline to grant the stay of proceedings in this case.

It may be added that the Court of Appeals has passed upon and decided at least four capital cases taken there by direct appeal under the provisions of the section referred to, and it is hardly conceivable that Court would have taken jurisdiction if there was any reasonable doubt of the constitutionality of the law.

"I see by your faces that the decision is against me."

Yes, Danny, the Court has decided against us," replied the lawyer.

Lyons tried to look cheerful, but it was with an apparent effort.

"It's all over now," sadly remarked the condemned man. "It's the fortunes of war, and the only thing for them to do now is to get ready for the funeral."

This was said with an air of resignation.

"Judge," said Lyons, after he had com-municated the news to the kind-hearted sis-ters who were moved to tears, "I thank you from the bottom of my heart for your efforts in my behalf. You've done all you could for me and may God bless you and Mr. Sulii. van."

Mr. Sullivan came in just then and Danny shook his hand warmly, but not a word was spoken.

With bared heads the sheriffs and others stood in the corridor looking at the lawyer and his doomed client, and no sound could be heard save an occasional sob from the Sisters.

Sisters.

Both lawyers left in a few minutes, and Danny resumed his conversation with the Sisters, who spoke words of comfort to the doomed man.

In spite of the terrible news Lyons was cheerful, and when the Sisters left, knelt devoutly before the little crucifix in his cell Danny has attended to his religious duties regularly for many months, and since the death watch was placed on him has prayed morning, noon and night with more fervency than before.

The men who are to watch his every move-ment until he is led to the scaffold have be-come very fond of their charge and speak in

He was hopeful that the decision of Judge Patterson would be in his favor, but said he would not be surprised if such was not the case. He read the newspapers carefully, and caserly porused the articles in which his name appeared. From now on Danny says he desires to see

For They Will Be Mascots to the Giants in Their Struggle for the Pennant.

If ever mortal man felt like kicking at defeat it was yesterday. To have Capt. Adrian Anson and his colts leave this town with a record of two games won and the third a tie was harder for the New Yorks to bear than all the season's defeats rolled into one.

Tuesday's loss was bad enough; but yesterday-to be besten by two miserable little runs, and to accept nine goose eggs when runs, and to accept nine goose eggs when thirteen men were left on bases—capped the horrible climax.

And what was wanting for victory? The Giants played a faultless game in the field and made nearly double the number of hits scored by their opponents. Nine hits, in this, a pitchers' year, is ordinarily a winning number, but not if, as yesterday, they be scattered throughout seven innings, and not if, as yesterday, with men on bases, succeeding batters hit the ball up in the air or strike out.

Out.

Bunched hits win games just as surely as errors lose them; but successive base hits can't always be had, be they wanted never so can't always be had, be they wanted never so badly.

The Giants for the past five or six weeks have been bunching their hits, have been succificing opportunity and have, therefore, been winning games. Yesterday they falled in all of these, and consequently lost. And if the Giants lost the game through ineffective batting then surely Mr. Baldwin, of Chicago, won the contest by effective pitching at critical moments.

ing at critical moments.

If the score had been reversed and the Giants had won in the same manner as did Chicago, all the town would have sung the praises of the man who pitched for Gotham. As it is the Giants' batsmen are blamed and praises of the man who pitched for Gotham. As it is the Giants' batsmen are blamed and no credit is given the opposing twirler.

But the people in this fown want the Giants to earn games from every pitcher who is opposed to them. There is no doubt but that the Giants, too, desire to do that very thing. A large factor in winning games is confidence. Confidence causes more base hits than any other one circumstance and oftentimes a very little thing gives a man confidence. In baseball a penny found "heads up," the presence of a mascot, the absence of a cross-syed boy, or a load of empty barrels causes a player to feel sure of hitting the ball and of winning the game.

If this, then, is true, and it is as Anson says, the Giants have again lost their grip on sand (which is confidence).

What is the matter with hurrying along those testimonial bats, and, by showing the boys that the public has not lost one jot of its confidence in them, inspire them with more confidence in them, inspire them with more confidence in themselves, and so cheer them on to further victories and the surely comize absentionship.

The meeting of the Democratic State Committee was announced for II o'clock this morning in the Grand Union Hotel, but there was the usual delay.

John Wiley, or Buffalo, familiarly known among the Black Horse Cavalry in Albany as "Jock" Wiley, had sat up all night trying to persuade members of the State Committee to name Buffalo as the place for holding the State convention, and the hotel proprietors of Saratoga would have gladly dumped him into the lake if they could have coaxed him there.

It is not likely that the company will fight the ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen which obliges the company to run conductors, although it questions the power of the Aldermen to pass such an ordinance.

Mayor Hewitt has notified the company that he will sign the ordinance as soon as he returns from his vacation, thereby making it a law, so the directors lastened to take some action in the matter.

The resolutions which were passed were sent to Mayor Hewitt, and Secretary Berry is daily expecting a reply from him.

When that reply comes the resolutions will be made public.

Secretary McLean received an Evening World reporter very courteously this morning. He said:

"Ever since the present directors came into power in the company, which was about a year ago, they have been studying and looking with a view to improving our system. We all favor the application of electricity as a motive power, and we have been making the closest study of the methods of its application, hoping to find a way to propel our cars by the force which would be entirely satisfactory to the public and curselves.
